Double His Assessment.

"Would you," inquires the Greenwood Journal, "give the deaf man a verdict, if you were on the jury, who is suing for damages because he alleges that he is paying for preaching he can't hear?"

Personally we'd be inclined to render a verdict after the fashion of the immortal Paddy Diver. As the story goes, a loyal henchman of the clan, named Danny, was arrested for an enthusiastic and successful assault upon an innocent third party. It was just before election, and Danny sent for his leader. The leader heard Danny's story and went to see Paddy Diver.

"Judge," he said, "I wish you'd be light on Danny. He's a good fellow, and can help us a lot in the election."

"All right!" said Paddy, "I'll give him thirty days!"

"But that will keep him in jail over the election!" the leader protested.

"H—," said Paddy, "I mean the plaintiff!"

City Man's Sneer at Country.

There was a Frenchman who hated the country as much as did Charles Lamb, but compressed his feelings into few words. This was Charles Monselet, who lived on the Quai Voltaire, Paris. "It is," he said, "the place where the birds are raw."

Old London Cries in Peril.

This is a daring age. Somebody has actually dared to criticize the vocal efforts of the itinerant vendor. It was "Sweet lavender; buy my sweet lavender" that established the immunity of the street cry from cavilers. There is no doubt that the "sweet lavender" business had, we trust—a good deal of pleasantry. Other yells from the gutter got in on it, too. You would hear a hoarse howl and begin to condemn it, and then stop . . . after all, was it not an "old London cry?" But too much "Milk-O" has at last pricked the bubble. A complainant at Highgate police court incontinently referred to this city as "something between the scream of a hyena and the falsetto of a donkey." "Chairs-to-mend O" may be the next to succumb.—London Globe.

Comparative.

"I think it must be awful to have a wife that goes through your pockets every time she gets a chance in search of loose change," said Willoughby. "Oh, that's only a minor affliction," said Barrows. "It's the wife that goes through your whole bank account that gets on my nerves."—Harper's Weekly.

Helps a Judge in Bad Fix.

Justice Eli Cherry of Gillis Mills Tenn., was plainly worried. A bad sore on his leg had baffled several doctors and long resisted all remedies. "I thought it was a cancer," he wrote. "At last I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve and was completely cured." Cures burns, boils, ulcers, cuts bruises and piles. 25c at all druggists. adv
